The Repeal of "Don't Ask—Don't Tell"

It's official. Both the Senate and the House of Representatives have voted to overturn the military's ban on enlisting homosexuals and lesbians. The liberals are cheering this as yet another victory for the "progressive" Obama agenda. This had to occur with the current democratic majority as no doubt the Tea Party newcomers would never pass such legislation once they take office next year.

Yes, it is true that Obama and his party are "transformative." They have implemented initiative after initiative to "socialize" America. Since winning the presidency and Congress two years ago they have gone forward without opposition. The Left is serious about destroying America as we know it and are willing to "put-it-all-on-the-line." The freedoms granted to us by our Constitution must be destroyed before the new collectivist plan can take its place. Unfortunately, the "establishment Republicans" have only one goal, and that is winning elections. [Individuals who have convictions don't "need to get back to their core principles," because those principles define who they are.] The problem with the establishment is they lack the inner values to guide them and lead the nation.

The character of the American people has changed drastically over the years. Elected officials merely reflect the citizenry. Conservative talk show hosts seem baffled why Harry Reid wins successive elections. But what would you expect from a populace who supports prostitution and gambling because of the supposed economic benefits to the state? No government can rise above the character of the general public and elected officials mirror the people who vote for them.

The repeal of the DADT highlights the acceleration of our cultural degradation. This move was welcomed by many of the armed forces elite. "We will be a better military as a result," said Adm. Mike Mullen, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. "Winning" militarily is obviously secondary, while implementing "politically correct" social policy is paramount at the Pentagon. What kind of nation would send its women into combat? What sort of nation would send homosexuals into front-line combat? It is the same type of nation that would deploy homosexuals in a sardine can called a submarine for months at a time—a nation that rejects the morality of the Bible and has lost the will to win.

Will this be the last nail to be driven into the lid of the national coffin? The Bible says, "Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people" (Prov. 14:34). Righteousness elevates a nation, but sin brings shame. Historically no culture has ever affirmed sexual perversion and survived for long.

When I was a child we pledged allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, not the "United States of Sodom."
